

Media Advisory

APRIL 16, 2007

Contact: Jennifer James McCollum
(405) 680-3262/www.flyokc.com

ExpressJet launches service under its own brand in OKC

Mark Kranenburg, Director of Airports with Matt Howell, ExpressJet, aboard an ExpressJet aircraft at Will Rogers World Airport.

Shayla Austin and Lauren Granihan with the Greater Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce, attended the launch of ExpressJet service at Will Rogers World Airport.

WILL ROGERS WORLD AIRPORT (April 16, 2007) –

Oklahoma City travelers had their first experience with ExpressJet Airlines' new non-stop service from Ontario, California and Albuquerque today. ExpressJet will bring non-stop service on line to connect Oklahoma City with Austin, San Antonio, Sacramento and San Diego in time for the summer travel season.

“Introducing ExpressJet has improved Will Rogers’ ability to meet the needs of this growing market, said Mark Kranenburg, Director of Oklahoma City Airports. “We see demand for non-stop flights continuing to climb.”

Making it easier for business and leisure travelers to come to Oklahoma City helps to drive the local economy. In addition, ExpressJet has created new jobs and made significant investments in airport facilities and equipment.

Jim Ream, ExpressJet President and CEO, said that ExpressJet branded service aims to save travelers time by eliminating layovers in crowded hubs. “We intend to deliver our customers more convenience and more service in growing cities like Oklahoma City with populations that are the right size for our 50-seat aircraft,” Ream said.